

Press Release

02.02.06

Law firm offers free clinics on family law

People in Market Rasen are being offered the chance to get free family law advice without leaving the town.

Market Rasen lawyers Bridge McFarland will be holding family law clinics at their Mill Street offices every Wednesday afternoon.

People attending the clinics will be offered a free half-hour consultation in which they will be able to seek advice on any aspect of family law, including divorce, separation and child access issues.

Bridge McFarland family law solicitor Jo Day said: "The main reason for running the clinics is to make people in Market Rasen and the surrounding area aware that they can get legal advice on all aspects of family law without having to travel out of the town.

"We will initially be running the clinics from 2pm to 4pm on Wednesdays, although we will be able to extend that if there is a large demand. To save possible waiting, we are asking people to ring first to book an appointment."

Jo, 32, is an experienced family solicitor and regularly advises on all aspects of family law, including divorce and separation, cases involving children, settling finances and dealing with domestic violence. She currently works in both Bridge McFarland's Market Rasen and Lincoln offices.

People interested in obtaining a free consultation at the clinics should call Bridge McFarland on 01673 843723.

-Ends-

Press release issued by Forest Communications for Bridge McFarland.

For further information, please call:

Jo Day on 01522 518818

Jonathan Ilott of Forest Communications on 0115 962 2787 or 07733 386688

Bridge McFarland

Solicitors

